

Jaeger-LeCoultre

HYBRIS ARTISTICA MYSTÉRIEUSE

DESIGN

Like a spider weaving its web, Jaeger-LeCoultre has painstakingly woven the skeletonised decor of this sculptural watch, to draw the eye deep into a magnificently executed staging that shows time with neither hour nor minute hands. The Hybris Artistica Mystérieuse is outstanding from all points of view. Visually, a mother-of-pearl overlay, carved like lace, delicately encloses the blue aventurine dial below. Technically, the automatic movement was developed to allow an uninterrupted view of the Gothic-inspired decoration.

The hours are shown by the position of the orbital flying Tourbillon that seems to hover above the dial, while the disc on the flange counts the minutes as they pass. The scene continues on the sides of the pink gold case, and on the movement by way of subtle touches of engraving and a flash of aventurine.
